Innovative, Person-Driven, Accommodation Tools

Innovative Person Driven Low/High Tech Accommodation Tools

with Jennifer White

Jennifer White, CEO, Able Opportunities, Inc., is a Subject Matter Expert for the Department of Labor, a Corporate Disability Inclusion Specialist and National Technical Assistance Consultant. Her experience includes residential, community and work support, university research, collaboration to honor and include the culture of first nation peoples, and cross agency projects serving people with intellectual developmental disabilities, mental health challenges, and multiple diagnoses. Her drive to level the playing field with appropriate accommodations has resulted in decades of innovation. Her enthusiasm, based in functional solutions, is contagious.

This training series examines the lens we use to define supports and accommodation tools, then incorporates the use of high and low-tech accommodations built with and by people with disabilities. These tools have a track record of success to address:

- low motivation
- passive and aggressive interactions
- shifting compliance to alliance
- new twists on low tech accommodations
- apps as accommodation to gain independence
- self-advocacy film, customer videos, video training, video resumes
- options for sequencing, calendars, task steps, cooking
- financial literacy, connecting production and earnings
- examples and templates for creating “How To” training tools
- business minded employer engagement
